ATAR course sample examination

Marking key

Marking keys are an explicit statement about what the examining panel expect of candidates when they respond to particular examination items. They help ensure a consistent interpretation of the criteria that guide the awarding of marks.

Section One: Short answer

30% (53 Marks)

Question 1

(6 marks)

Refer to Figure 1 on the previous page to answer this question.

Identify and describe how two design principles have been synthesised with the elements of shape and colour in the design of the Al Bahar Towers.

Description	Marks
For each (2 x 3 marks)
Identifies and describes how a design principle is used in the tower design, with some reference to the elements of shape and colour	3
Identifies and outlines how a design principle is used in the tower design	2
Identifies a design principle used in the tower design	1
Total	6
Answers could include: Variety <ul style="list-style-type: none"> can be seen in the alternating formation of triangular shapes in the kinetic façade. The contrast of the open and closed shading shapes of the kinetic façade adds variety which engages the viewer. Variety is also created through contrasting shapes, while the colour of the yellow façade contrasts against the blue/green smooth glass of the building's exterior. The varied undulating form of the façade also adds to this principle. Variety has been used effectively in this way to add interest to the building's design. Emphasis <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the façade of the building has been created through the use of contrasting colours and shapes. The repeating golden triangle shapes are emphasised against blue/green coloured glass. In this case emphasis has been used effectively to direct the viewer's attention to the bright kinetic façade of the building. Repetition <ul style="list-style-type: none"> triangular shaped panels have been used to construct the kinetic façade. The repetition of this middle east inspired parametric geometry (shape) has been used effectively to create a visually striking and engaging design. The repetition of these triangular shapes also produces a pattern, which is more subtle when the façade is closed as the light falls differently on the yellow facets, creating different tones of colour. Contrast <ul style="list-style-type: none"> can be seen in the use of shape and colour. The contrast of the coloured yellow façade against the blue/green glass of the building's exterior is very visually pleasing. Likewise, the regular pattern of the glass panels contrasts with the irregular edges of the triangular shaped components of the responsive façade. The contrasting aspects of this building have been used to create an aesthetically pleasing design.

Question 2

(12 marks)

- (a) Identify the two different typographic styles used in the golfing logos of Figures 2 and 3. (2 marks)

Description	Marks
Total	2

- (b) Refer to Figure 2, the Driving After Dark logo. Use relevant typographic terminology to justify why the logo successfully engages the target audience. (4 marks)

Description	Marks
Justifies why the logo successfully engages the target audience, using relevant typographic terminology	4
Explains why the logo engages the target audience, using mostly relevant typographic terminology	3
Describes why the logo engages the audience, using some typographic terminology	2
States a fact about the logo using limited typographic terminology	1
Total	4
Answers could include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • this logo is promoting night golfing sessions. The target audience would most likely be busy, professional, conscientious males who love golf but struggle to make time to fit it in their regular day • the typeface is an old-fashioned serif style, which uses both upper and lowercase. this typeface is conservative and would appeal to the target audience • the kerning between each letter is evenly spaced and not too tight. A traditional and non-controversial design that would engage the target audience • the characters used in the word 'after' are placed on a curved line to add interest and a focus for the logo. This subtly communicates 'fun' to the audience • the curved line and middle word align perfectly with the top of the ascenders and the bottom of the descenders in the other two words. The words are legible and the message is clear to the audience.

- (c) Referring to Figure 3, the Spartan Golf Club logo, explain how the designer has applied two Gestalt principles to communicate meaning. (6 marks)

Description	Marks
For each (2 x 3 marks)
Explains how the Gestalt principle has been applied to communicate meaning in Figure 3	3
Describes how the Gestalt principle has been applied to communicate meaning in Figure 3	2
Outlines how the Gestalt principle has been applied to communicate meaning in Figure 3	1
Total	6
Answers could include: Gestalt Principles: Figure/ground, similarity, proximity, continuation, closure. Figure/ground <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the golfing figure and swinging motion of a golf club is an optical illusion. When viewed differently, it also forms the shape of the side profile of a face, while the curved circular sections form the crest on the top of a Spartan helmet. This visually communicates both the name and the function of the brand being promoted in the logo. Continuation <ul style="list-style-type: none"> is applied to the curved shapes making up the helmet crest, which can also be viewed as a golf swing motion. The eye is drawn through the logo which is appealing and helps communicate meaning, while reinforcing the brand Proximity <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the separate curved shapes are placed in close proximity to each other so that they read as one object (the crest on the top of a Spartan helmet). The slight space between them can also be interpreted to mean a progression of speed or force which occurs during the action of swinging a golf club. The kerning of the characters in the logo typography is very loose, while their proximity still allows us to read the letters together to form the words 'Spartan Golf Club'. Closure <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the different components of this logo are all separated, yet the Gestalt principle of closure allows our brain to form a connection between them and to understand how they work together to communicate meaning. Despite the 'missing' information, we can see the person swinging a golf club, a side profile of a face wearing a Spartan helmet and the symbolic movement of the golf club. Accept other relevant answers.

Question 3

(16 marks)

- (a) Complete the table below by identifying the figure on page 8 that corresponds to each target audience profile. (4 marks)

Description	Marks
For each (4 x 1 mark)
Identifies the figure for the target audience	1

- (b) Discuss how demographic characteristics and psychographic segmentation have influenced the development of one of the tourism posters on the previous page. (8 marks)

Description	Marks
Demographic characteristics
Discusses how demographic characteristics has influenced the development of the poster	4
Explains how demographic characteristics has influenced the development of the poster	3
Describes some demographic characteristics applied to the development of the poster	2
Identifies the demographic characteristics in the poster	1

Answers could include: Figure 4: Tourism poster Queensland = Target audience D This poster presents imagery of young men enjoying the Australian outdoors in the form of a surfing safari to target audience D's enjoyment of physical activity. They are clearly active, running toward the ocean holding surfboards. As there are three young men, surfing becomes a social activity, as well as a physical one. As Australia is quite well known for its beaches and surf, this imagery acts as a major draw card for the intended audience who enjoy adventure, the outdoors and being 'on trend'. Figure 5: Tourism poster New South Wales = Target audience profile A This poster depicts a well-dressed young couple sailing on a yacht through Sydney Harbour to engage the interest and values of target audience A. This audience have abundant resources and high incomes and are likely to be able to afford to hire a private yacht. Presenting only two people (a couple) on the yacht appeals to the value the audience places on indulgence and independence. There is also a table setting for two and a barbecue seafood dinner, which is associated with enjoying the finer things in life, which this target audience enjoys. The act of hiring a private yacht and to be 'seen' sailing Sydney Harbour also engages this audience's belief that social status is important. Figure 6: Tourism poster South Australia = Target audience B This poster depicts a middle-aged, semi-retired couple walking on a beach having a conversation with one of the locals. The choice to use this imagery engages target audience B who value the simple aspects of holidaying, independently exploring on their own, being self-sufficient, enjoying physical activity and their surroundings. Their sensible clothing and backpacks reinforce this self-sufficiency and practicality. These consumers conserve funds by organising their own activities as depicted in the imagery of seeking the advice of locals as opposed to organised tours.

 This poster shows a couple learning about Aboriginal culture from an elder. This engages target audience C’s interest in what goes on in the world, new ideas and different cultures. The typography used supports the imagery and engagement of the audience through the statement, ‘Arrived to experience a different culture. Departed with a whole new outlook’.

(c) The following four stakeholders were consulted during the design of the Tourism Australia campaign shown in the posters on page 9:

- Stakeholder 1: Participating state governments.
- Stakeholder 2: Potential local and international tourists
- Stakeholder 3: Finance department of Tourism Australia
- Stakeholder 4: Communities depicted in the posters

Complete the Power vs Interest grid below to classify each of the four stakeholders and their level of engagement with the campaign. (4 marks)

Question 8

(16 marks)

Consider the statement below with reference to a design you proposed this year.

Designers play a critical role in providing innovative and sustainable solutions to design problems. It is increasingly important to make design decisions that aim to reduce environmental impact and occupational safety and health (OSH) risks.

With reference to this statement, write an essay to discuss the life cycle of a design you proposed this year. Include in your response two appropriate strategies that aim to reduce environmental impact or OSH risks and how your design outcome was impacted by these strategies.

Impact on the design

- higher cost of manufacture, final product, consumer price point
- difficulty/delay in accessing materials
- perceived or real reduction in quality
- fewer/less attractive colour choices

reduction in quality of finish if it must be adaptable/modular.
